HOW DEVELOPMENTAL SCIENCE CAN HELP ADDRESS ANTI-BLACK RACISM DURING ADOLESCENCE

INDIVIDUAL

- Help build a healthy personal and ethnic-racial identity.
- Ensure that Black youth have opportunities to explore and take healthy risks.
- Promote adolescents' existing resilience.

INSTITUTIONAL

- Support policies that address the unique challenges faced by Black families.
- Increase awareness of racial and economic disparities by providing culturally sensitive curricula/training and equitable school funding.
- Establish policies, programs, and training that counteract indirect and overt threats to health and well-being.

Provide ample pathways for leadership, contribution, and relationship-building.
